Low Cost or No Cost Student Laptops

A nonprofit providing very low cost, to no cost, computer tablets or student-laptops... to help students get educational apps, books, online educational tutorials, educational information and the ability to do research in all fields of interest. With the hope that given the information they need, young minds can learn, grow, and apply what they learn in their own communities.

Computer tablets are only provided through schools. We work with schools to provide tablets to their students.

We will assess the individual situations of each school to determine how we can support the use of computer tablets in a given school. Schools in remote rural areas may need solar chargers which students would use for energy needs, while schools in more developed areas won't need energy support.

Where necessary, we will collaborate with the school and corporate companies to bring about low cost, to no cost, internet access.

Our hope is to collaborate with sponsors, corporations and ordinary individuals, to bring about a grassroots economic shift in schools and classrooms all over the world. Yes.

Practical applications of Education

The world is no longer the way it functioned 40 years ago. A young man with an eighth grade education did not have to look far to find a job! As long as he could read reasonably well, and make basic calculations, had good character and a desire to work hard to earn a living, he could provide for his needs and the needs of his family.

Many of us look to education as the answer to financial freedom! But it's no longer an eighth grade education that will cut the grade, and it's not a High School certificate, and in growing communities, it is not a basic college degree. The standard keeps rising! There are now more educated people in the world than there were 40 years ago, and more working people trying to eke out a living while competing with the convenience of technologies that can do the equivalent work of twenty people within one hour.

“THERE IS MORE THAN ONE WAY TO SKIN A RAT....”

THIS IS JUST ONE WAY OUT OF MANY, BUT BOY DOES IT MAKE SENSE!

There really is a need to shift education towards practical applications to everyday life. Young people in unindustrialized communities should be learning about practical ways they can bring about wholesome economic and social growth or changes, in areas where there is need for further development.

Young people should be studying how to harness self-sustainable solar energy so that their communities are not so dependent on importing oil. Children should be exploring ways to harvest clean water, in a safe sustainable fashion.

The educational model of learning, getting a diploma, yet having no practical skills to apply toward the community's viable needs is self-defeating.

Online education removes the limitations in what we learn!

One can learn nearly everything that is suited to their personal needs, the needs of their community, and the talent and interests of the student. One is able to explore the world's information highway... and then carve out their own path.

Education is still the path to financial and economic freedom.... but we are sticking to an old paradigm of education versus shifting with the times.

Are you ready to make that shift? What role are you willing to play, to make it happen? If you are reading this, you are able in very small and in big ways, help shift the learning paradigm... and directly and indirectly, give lasting impact on the globe.

TELL US YOUR STORY!

Almost all of us have stories to tell; of where you went to school, the hardships you faced, or how fortunate you were.

Many of us have stories of people who held up the candle of education for us, whether they were mentors, parents, teachers, or other students. One thing is clear: education does not happen in a vacuum. Children, students, young people, need support in order to become disciplined in study, and in order to pull through the ups and downs of living

As you ponder on all the people who moved in and out of your life, and supported you in your learning experience, consider how you might support the learning of today's young generation, who will one day be the decision makers on planet Earth.

Economic stability, global peace, are something we should desire for us, and for our neighbors, and our neighbor's neighbors. We live in a society where there is a ripple effect on many factors. But I digress...

What is your story?
